Dear Essential Stelzer: (love the typo for Steve)

Thank you for contacting me with your comments regarding global climate change and greenhouse gases. I recognize the time and effort that you are dedicating to actively participate in the democratic process, and I appreciate that you and other concerned citizens have provided me the benefit of your comments on this matter.

I welcome an open debate on how to be a good steward of our environment. I support efforts to improve our nation's environmental quality, and I believe regulations should be based on the best available science and risk-based standards.

OK, the DEBATE is NOT over, and HE defines the best science. Then there is the entire RISK argument – For attacking Iraq for WMD's but not avoiding climate change, for instance.....

I strongly believe that innovation and technological advances in traditional and alternative sources of energy will ultimately address our nation's challenges more effectively than onerous government regulation.

YOU ARE THE GOVERNMENT, how about making it less onerous? And where would the environment be without regulations? Entities don't tend to refrain from polluting or clean up after themselves without regulations...

Furthermore, I believe that any effort to control greenhouse gas emissions should not place the United States at a global economic disadvantage or penalize American families & workers.

AHA!: global economic disadvantage. Here's what I think he really means -

Furthermore, I believe that any effort to control greenhouse gas emissions should not place the United States at a global economic disadvantage or penalize American ~~families & workers~~ corporations.

You may be certain that I will continue to support policies that ensure economic viability while protecting public health.

What? Protecting public health? That's what EPA's mission is.

I am always appreciative when Texans take the time to reach out and share their concerns. Thank you for taking the time to contact me.

Because he has staff paid at our expense to respond to constituents – plenty of time!

Sounds to me like: “Feel free to wear yourself out contacting me in the name of the democratic process, because I was voted in, and all I have to do is answer you politely”

Sincerely,

JOHN CORNYN

United States Senator
